Chronology of Les Immatériaux

Version 2, 1 July 2020

Edited by Andreas Broeckmann and Marie Vicet

Introduction

The "Chronology of Les Immatériaux" is a working document that contains dates and entries on events, meetings and publications which were part of, or immediately significant for, the preparation and the realisation of the exhibition Les Immatériaux, held at the Centre Georges Pompidou in Paris in spring 1985. We envisage to publish extended and amended versions of this "Chronology" in the future.

Unlike the first version of the "Chronology" (published in October 2018) which mainly drew on the calendars that Martine Moinot, project manager of the Immatériaux, kept throughout the years of her involvement in the project, from 1982 till 1985, this second version is based additionally on the calendars of the philosopher and Immatériaux curator, Jean-François Lyotard, for the years 1983 till 1985. Lyotard's calendars are held, together with his manuscripts and other materials, by the Bibliothèque littéraire Jacques Doucet in Paris (box JFL 538).

Lyotard regularly used the same type of small calendars during these years, ca. 11 x 7 cm in size, of the Fournier Mignon brand (fig. 1). In these calendars, each double page covers four days, with no dedicated room for notes. For each day there is a column of preprinted ciphers for the hours of the working day (from 9 to 20). Lyotard used the calendar in a usual way for both private and professional appointments, occasionally also noting addresses and telephone numbers, small to-do lists for individual days, etc. The notes were mostly taken in a rather casual and unsystematic way, using different types of pens in different colours (black, blue, occasionally red), though most often they were made with pencils. Sometimes there are notes in a different handwriting, indicating that somebody else was noting down appointments for him.

The period excerpted for the "Chronology of Les Immatériaux" starts at the beginning of 1983 – showing that certain contacts existed prior to Lyotard's involvement in the exhibition project –, but the entries related to the project intensify from the beginning of June 1983 onwards when Lyotard was first contacted by the director of the Centre de Création Industrielle (cci), Paul Blanquart (fig. 2). They fade out in the summer of 1985.

The second main source for this “Chronology” are the calendars of Martine Moinot who joined the staff of the Centre Georges Pompidou (CGP) in June 1977 as a documentation officer for the cci and worked on several exhibitions before starting to cooperate with Thierry Chaput and others, at the beginning of 1982, on the preparations of the exhibition that would become Les Immatériaux. Afterwards, Moinot continued working for the CGP where her projects included the realisation, together with artist and theorist Jean-Louis Boissier and curator Christine Van Assche, of the exhibition and event series Revue Virtuelle (1992-1996). Martine Moinot retired from her position in January 2009.

Moinot’s calendar includes detailed entries not only of her own appointments, but also of those of other members of the team (especially Thierry Chaput, Catherine Testanière, Nicole Toutcheff, Sabine Vigoureux). Often, though not always, there are indications of further participants, their institutions, and sometimes also of the purpose of the meeting. On each double-page of the 17,5 x 10 cm size booklets (Espace 16S by Exacompta), there is a weekly calendar (Monday to Sunday) on the left page with two columns of preprinted ciphers for the hours of the working day, and room for notes on the right page. Here we find many notes, including addresses, telephone numbers, reminders to make appointments, etc., which in most cases can tentatively be related to specific meetings (fig. 3).

Many of these entries indicate more or less direct relationships between the different points of reference (an appointment, a name, a list of names of individuals or institutions for further research), a meshwork of hints that, in this second version of the "Chronology," is additionally enhanced through the comparison of the parallel entries in the calendars of Lyotard and Moinot. They can help to reconstruct certain temporal and personal research constellations that led to specific curatorial decisions for the exhibition proper.

Reading the chronology

The "Chronology of Les Immatériaux" is meant as a resource that offers a wealth of new information, especially about the preparation phase of the exhibition. A smaller part of the information presented here is based on additional archival sources in the Public Archives of the Centre Georges Pompidou (CGP-AP), and ones that have been mentioned in the studies by Francesca Gallo (2008), Antony Hudek (2009/2015), and Antonia Wunderlich (2008). However, the dense mesh of meetings, names and notes that can be drawn from Lyotard's and Moinot's calendars gives a whole new dimension to our knowledge about the Immatériaux project.

We will, in this short preface, only point to some of the insights that can be gleaned from a closer reading of the chronology. For instance, it now becomes possible to analyse more closely the research that Thierry Chaput and his team did before the spring of 1983 when the contact with Jean-François Lyotard was first established. Based on such an analysis, a more detailed description will be possible of how much of Chaput's considerations (which culminated in the proposal, dated 14 April 1983, with the working title "La Matière dans tous ses états") would finally make it into the actual exhibition.

The chronology also elucidates how Lyotard first got involved in the project in the spring and summer of 1983. After several failed attempts the director of the cci at the time, Paul Blanquart, wrote a letter to Lyotard on 25 May, asking him to get in touch. For the following week, Lyotard's calendar mentions meetings with Blanquart on Wednesday, 1 June, and with Chaput on Saturday, 4 June (fig. 2).

This information is seconded by an entry in Moinot's calendar, documenting the first meeting of the two future collaborators at 9:00 o'clock on a Saturday morning. Less than three weeks later (23 June) Lyotard came to the offices of the cci for the first time, followed by all-day meetings of Lyotard with Chaput and his team on 13 July, 2 August, 12 August, and 5 September. Then, in the following days, there were meetings with the president of the Centre Pompidou, Jean Maheu, and with the directors of the other major institutional partners within the Centre Pompidou, Michel Melot of the Bibliothèque publique d'information (BPI), and Pierre Boulez of IRCAM. (A meeting with Dominique Bozo, director of the Musée National d'Art Moderne, MNAM, would follow on 19 September.) The final kick-off meeting with the team then took place on 15 September, marking both the end of the holiday season and the arrival of Lyotard: "rentrée pour tout le monde, Lyotard" (fig. 5 and 6).

Significantly, the first conceptual sketch ("Esquisse") that Lyotard wrote and that introduced the neologism and later exhibition title, "Les Immatériaux," was dated on 10 August, sandwiched between two day-long meetings with the team and no doubt written as part of the ongoing discussions about how to develop and transform the project originally conceived by Chaput and his team at the cci.

We can also see in the chronology that soon after the kick-off, Lyotard would leave, on 23 September, for teaching in California, returning only on 6 December, a planned absence of ten weeks that was possibly interrupted once by a telephone call scheduled for 13 October (an appointment which, however, can only be found in Moinot's calendar, not in Lyotard's). During this period, the work of the team continued unabatedly, including the first meetings for the technical preparations of the collaborative writing project, Épreuves d'écriture, with the media and software company SERPEA.

The entries in the calendars have to be taken with some caution. Even though there is little reason to doubt the accuracy of most entries, we have to consider the possibility that some of the documented meetings were planned but did not take place, or were rescheduled. In many, but not in all instances, the entries in Lyotard's and Moinot's calendars match with each other, or with other sources.

Nevertheless, the reliability of the different sources has to be evaluated critically. For instance, during a personal meeting with the philosopher of science, Michel Tibon-Cornillot (in September 2016), he could find only one appointment at the cci in his own calendar for 1984, namely on 11 November. In contrast, Moinot's calendar mentions a total of nine meetings with Tibon-Cornillot in the autumn of 1984 – which does not seem unrealistic, given the conceptual significance for Lyotard and the whole project of Tibon-Cornillot's research on genetics, and given the fact that Tibon-Cornillot participated both in the Épreuves project, and as an interviewee in the film about the Immatériaux, Octave au pays des Immatériaux (Paule Zajdermann and Daniel Soutif, 1985). Several, though not all of these entries match with the entries mentioning Tibon-Cornillot in Lyotard's calendar. Moinot's calendar has the last meeting with Tibon-Cornillot down for 9 November (and not for 11 November, the date mentioned in Tibon-Cornillot's own calendar), a date which seems more realistic since 11 November was not only a Sunday, but also the annual public holiday celebrating the 1918 armistice. – The example shows that it will be necessary to try and find additional evidence, as well as conduct further interviews with the participants, to ascertain whether, in this case Michel Tibon-Cornillot, might perhaps yet find notes or other evidence of some of those additional meetings documented in Moinot's calendar.

One such additional source is the double page from Chaput's calendar which was printed as a low-resolution facsimile in the Album part of the catalogue of the Immatériaux (p.30). During the week documented here (19 to 23 November 1984), most dates match between Chaput's and Moinot's calendars, further suggesting that many of the dates in Moinot's calendar should be accurate. Chaput's own calendar could not be found again, so far – which is a pity, because it was such a significant tool for organising the team's cooperation, and it would be a fantastic source to have. The team members recall that this calendar would always be placed openly on Chaput's desk, making it possible for Moinot, Vigoureux and the others to check at any time where Chaput was when absent from the shared office, and whether he would be available for an appointment at a future date.

This second version of the "Chronology" now also contains a small number of entries relating to the preparations of the project by Jacques Mullender of the cci and Thierry Gaudin of the Ministry of Industry, in 1980 and 1981. (This preparatory phase is described in Working Paper No. 5.) There are no entries referring to the project in Moinot's calendars for this period. The first reference to "Matériaux Technologie" appears on 26 January 1982, matching Moinot's memory that the project was already on its way when she joined Chaput's team.

Editorial Notes

The chronology published here contains those entries in Jean-François Lyotard's calendars from 1983 till 1985, and in Martine Moinot's calendars from 1981 till 1985, that appear to relate to the preparations of the Immatériaux project. They have been reviewed and at times amended slightly, especially regarding the spelling of names. For this we have particularly drawn on the published documents and catalogues, the Inventaire, the Album, and Épreuves d'écriture. However, it may well be that some names are spelled incorrectly, or inconsistently – something to keep in mind when you search the document for specific names.

In cases where the same event is mentioned in both Lyotard's and Moinot's calendars (sometimes with only slight variations), we have preserved both entries, despite the occasional redundancy that this creates. The entries drawn from Lyotard's calendars are marked with a dot in the right margin of the chronological list.

Additionally, there are a number of entries that have been drawn from documents found in the Public Archives of the Centre Pompidou (CGP-AP), or reprinted in the catalogue publications, as well as a number of entries from the calendar of Jean-Louis Boissier who was involved in the Immatériaux project as an artist and a scientific advisor since 1982.

Text between quotation marks ("...") has been transcribed literally; most other entries are also literal transcriptions, but because these ones are special, or particularly odd, the quotation marks can be taken like sic! – yes, it's really like this! Question marks between brackets [?] indicate that the respective words are hard to read. Entries referenced as "notes" are, in Moinot's calendar, generally found on the right page of the booklets, and, in Lyotard's calendars, often placed near the inner fold, detached from a specific time indication. For most of the entries in Lyotard's calendars, we have added "[JFL]" to the descriptions, presuming that he was present on these occasions, and in order to make them searchable in the chronology document.

We would like to thank Martine Moinot for giving us such generous access to a document with such a strong personal value, and for her patience in helping us to transcribe the relevant entries. We are equally grateful to Dolorès Lyotard and the Bibliothèque Doucet for granting us access to Jean-François Lyotard's calendars and for permission to publish these excerpts from them.

Finally, we want to encourage improvements to the "Chronology" document. Please, contact us through the website www.les-immateriaux.net, for any corrections, additions or comments.
